HAS BEEN
Around the fighter's cluttered camp,
Along the golfer's trail
You'll find the hangers-on—the tramp
Whose days are gone—but still
Their memories linger on.
And so it is with us
Whose football days have flown.
We gather round and fuss
About the games to come—
With envy eyes
Whose kicks, long spiralling ones,
Elude the safety's clutch, and sad
Are we. Indeed it seems a sin
To be classed—Has Been!

It seems that everyone is knocking something these days.

Over in Europe where big men play the childish game of hide-and-seek with murder in their hearts, Hitler, his monstrous henchmen and their army are knocking their way down through the Balkans. Down in the southern climes of the country which fought to make the world "safe for democracy" exponents of the diamond lust are chasing fangs full of poison and sharpening battling eyes preparatory to knocking each other around a bit while in pursuit of that elusive bunting—a league champion-

While Johnson is putting their protest on their faces—grunting, swearing, laughing, and slugging kicks high in the air—these men are arching long noses in the air and standing taking a find this twelve star headlines with envious looks in their eyes, and lashing themselves for beyond their control.

Sad! But as Tenney said: "It's the old order changed that counts." And as the times accompanied
